

Welcome to The Lochsa Lodge

The original Lochsa Lodge was built in 1929 by Andrew Erickson as a commercial hunting lodge. Sportsmen traveled by trail from Missoula, Montana and by Lolo Motorway from Kooskia, Idaho to stay at the Lodge, which was at the heart of some of the wildest country in the lower 48 states. In 1984 the Denton family bought the Lodge and have been running it as a family business ever since.

In 2001, a tragic fire destroyed the historic Old Lodge and in May of 2002 Gus, Don and Andrea Denton opened the doors to the new building built from hand-scribed logs. The lodge remains open 365 days a year to accommodate travelers from near and far. The Denton family and their treasured employees strive to make all guests feel comfortable, relaxed and welcome in all four seasons in the heart of wild Idaho!
